Advance Future

Technical Information

The mechanism incentivises investors by passively earning dividends by other investor transactions made throughout their time holding tokens. The redistribution is based on a percentage (in the contract), currently held token balance and number of holders influencing both volume and market capitulation. You receive more tokens passively by buying and holding your own.

A transaction fee is applied to every unique sell order where the sold tokens are then swapped in real-time for BNB and added to a POOL (similar to how liquidity pools function). The metadroid token they collect is based on the percent of the supply they hold and the current pool's size.

Providing enough knowledge to cryptocurrency investors concerning fees, market fluctuation and transaction procedures is difficult. Therefore it is more difficult for them to be accustomed to this information until they go through the full claiming experience. This makes intelligent investing strategies hard to coordinate.
